The female leadership journey

Available in QLD, SA

In this interactive session, you will hear from a panel of influential business women who are passionate about the advancement of others like them. Be entertained and inspired by their individual stories and their leadership journeys.

Our panel will also share their ideas on:

- the need for more women in leadership roles, including the current regulatory environment
- the importance of gender diversity in leadership
- the debate on merit versus quotas

This session promises to provide you with a comprehensive look at the current state of play for women in the workforce.

Facilitator

Jennifer Dalitz CPA left her executive role to create Sphinxx, a social enterprise that provides resources and professional development to support women on their leadership journey, as well as education to ensure employers find and keep the best women on their teams. Jennifer has been recognised with an Edna Ryan Workplace Award for improving the working conditions of Australian women.

South Australian panellists

Isobel Redmond has been a Member of Parliament since 2002. A lawyer by training, it was Isobel's passion for community service which led her into a career in politics where she eventually became the Leader of the State Liberal team in July 2009. Although achieving an overall 7.8 per cent swing against Labor and more than 50 per cent of the State vote, the Liberals did not win government. Isobel was re-elected as Leader in March 2010, and remains focussed on winning government on 15 March 2014.

In the two years Nicole Graham has been Chief Executive of scosa, she has significantly raised the profile and awareness of scosa's brand. Nicole established a popular Disability Awareness Program specifically created for secondary students, to ensure the next generations of South Australians have a greater ingrained understanding of disability. An alliance with the AFL through "kicking goals for scosa" is one campaign that Nicole is particularly proud of, along with the Adapted Sporting Programs which were recognized at an international Symposium held in France in 2011.

Dianne Rogowski was appointed Chief Executive Officer for the City of Tea Tree Gully in 2009. Prior to this, Di enjoyed a career spanning 30 years with the National Australia Bank, finishing as State Manager for the Private Bank. While at NAB, Dianne enjoyed roles across all segments of the bank and was also responsible for establishing the Private Bank in Adelaide. In 2005, Dianne was the recipient of the prestigious Telstra Business Women of the Year Award for the Corporate, Government and Business sector.

Queensland panellists

Kathy Hirschfeld is a non-executive director of Snowy Hydro Limited, ASC Pty Ltd and the Queensland Reconstruction Authority, and is a Senator of the University of Queensland. She is President of the Queensland Regional Council for children's cancer charity Redkite and recently joined the board of the United Nations Women in Australia. A chemical engineer, Kathy has had a 20 year career with BP and in 2007 Kathy was recognised by Engineers Australia as one of 25 of Australia's most influential female engineers.

Justine Hickey is a director of Australian Ethical Investment Ltd, Rio Tinto Staff Superannuation Fund and RSPCA QLD, and also chairs the Evolve Foundation.

Justine has 20 years of experience in investment and funds management as an equities portfolio manager, and in senior management with Suncorp in Brisbane and Flemings Investment Management (now JP Morgan) in London.

She is a graduate of the Australian Institute of Company Directors, a Senior Associate of the Financial Services Institute of Australasia, and a member of the CFA Institute.

Professor Keitha Dunstan FCPA has been the Head of the School of Business at Bond University since November 2009. She commenced her accounting career with Mann Judd Edmonds in Brisbane before moving into academia in 1989 when she joined the Queensland University of Technology. In 2000, Keitha accepted her first Professorial appointment at Victoria University of Wellington in New Zealand. Keitha was a Commissioner of the New Zealand Securities Commission from 2003 – 2011.
